Dear Sir/Ma'am,

I'm working a data science project on a pro bono basis for RootedinRights.org. While I was examining your available data as posted on your website, I wondered if you might have information available to support the analysis project, specifically, would you have data to segment the portion of Washington citizens whose disability prevents them from driving/having a drivers license? I noted that your statistics-at-a-glance report delineates between ID card holders and driver's license holders. If so, I could make the request and pay the fee for the processing. Could I have your thoughts please?
